THE PRESENT AND FUTURE OF BRITISH TRADE.

The Loudon Builionist, in a recent article on the effect of the waren British trade and manufactures, says:

Although cut lamentably short, in its reduced proportions, is not unsound; the loss lies in the diminution of transactions, not in their quality, and every branch is apparently affected in a similar manner.

Very great damental description of the wealth of the Southern States, since it cannot fail to be largely in the strumental in hastening a restoration of specie payments, in starting the wheels of commerce into a starting the wheels of the section of prosperous years, of which the succession of prosperou apparently affected in a similar manner.

Very great depression exists in all those departments of manufactures which supply the export trade, the cause of which is too plain to require statement. Cotten and iron seem to suffer most. But with too plain to require statement. Cotton and iron seem to suffer most. But with respect to the former, truth compels the observation that the outbreak of the war is not wholly to blame. In Liverpool ex-cessive speculation, not to say gambling. has been carried on, and in some in-stances, rumor has it, worse than gambi-ing. At any rate, the collapse in that centre of affairs has made its reaction very distinctly feit on the London 'change by forced sales of securities. It is our for-eign trade of course—infinitely the most important and valuable to us—that the war affects. Our manufacturing popula-tion and enormous plant would find only wrstched employment indeed in the bare supply of the home markets, but any consupply of the home markets, but any considerable interruption of our intercourse with those alroad must be disastrous to our industry. As long as the war lasts, however, we fear we may make up our minds to this. The shutting up by blockndes of ports we have been accustomed to trade to—the inevitable rise of freights as consequence of high rates of insurance. ades of ports we have been accustomed to trade to—the leveritable rise of breights as a consequence of high rates of insurance and increased risks—the obscurity and doubt which hang over questions compared to the manufacturer's name, together with the output of the trade of the proper compared to a representation of the money market; which is the heart and observation will bring conviction of its soundness. Capital, however, will probably have to submit to another period of forced inactivity. But better that then principal trades and if gold has in certain quantities goun abroad, whether for loans or in the purchase of securities remain in the purchase of securities; it is not to be forgotion that those securities remain in the heart of some of the proper stores of securities; it is not to be forgotion that those securities remain in the purchase of securities; it is not to be forgotion that those securities remain in the purchase of securities; it is not to be forgotion that those securities remain in the purchase of securities; it is not to be forgotion that those securities remain in the purchase of securities; it is not to be forgotion that those securities remain in the purchase of securities; it is not to be forgotion that those securities remain in the purchase of securities; it is not to be forgotion that those securities remain in the purchase of securities; it is not to be forgotion that those securities remain in the purchase of securities; it is not to be forgotion that those securities remain in the purchase of securities; it is not to be forgotion that those securities remain in the purchase of securities; it is not to be forgotion that those securities remain in the purchase of securities; it is not to be forgotion that the securities remain in the purchase of securities; it is not to be forgotion that the securities remain in the purchase of securities; it is not to be

POREIGN AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS, From the New York Bulletin, of Mon-

From the New York Bulletia, of Monday, we extract the following in reference to the condition of the domestic and foreign dry goods market of that city on Saturday last:

Domestic Dry Goods.—The market opened to day with an active trade in all departments. The more ments during the early part of the day were quite heavy. Later, however, the startling war news attracted the attention of dealers, and so great was the interest manifes'ed in the reports, that trade was comparatively neglected. Some dealers, over sanguing parhaps, predict the immediate cassation of hostilities, and an early declaration of peace. This they believe will be accompanied by the revival of Continental trade, and an advance in raw cotton. This would naturally cause an advance in total continents of the condition of the money market is still take money best paper is still taken by the banks at 12 per cent., but on the street it goes at 3 per cent, per month. Exchange is bought at par, and sold at 'a premium. Aiready there is a gathering in of resources by the banks in order to furnish the means of moving the incoming cotton crop. We need twice the amount of banking capital used in this city, and it is very strange that other moneyed institutions are not organized. All that we have are prosperous to an extent not known e'sewhere in the United States. Can't Western cities furnish us with money enough to bring down the Strates. Can't Western cities furnish us with money enough to bring down the Strates. Schofield's Patent Cotton Press

THIS PRESS must commend likely to the cotion planters of the Southern States for a durability, simplicity of construction, and ease with which it can be operated by eith hand, horse, under or seem power, the charge from one to the other being effected in a fe tainutes. A great advantage this Press possesses is that occupies for hand power only space of fourteon feet square and may be placed and operated in a gin-house, thus avo idin the necessity of taking cotion out of the home to be packed. It can be used in any kind o weather; the Press being in the house, rainy days are no obstacle to packing, as is the case with wooden screws. Another silvantage is, when you get Schoffield's Press, you have a Press for all time, and one not liable to seems or break, as is the case with the old wooden screws and most other from screws and presses. This is evident from the fact that the screw is from, either wrought or cast, and the frames may be made of wood, at the option of the Press liable to decay tonches the ground. The frames may be made of wood, at the option of the planter.

Planters may purchase either the screw and not alone and put the frame and box of wood to it themselves, or may purchase the screw, nut and from frames, and put the wooden box to it themselves, or may purchase the screw, nut and from frames, and put the wooden box, making the most complete Press in use. Presses complete, as last named, are in more general use, and give great satisfaction to all parties using them, as will be seen from letters in my possession, a few of which may be found elsewhere in this circular, and could furnish thousands.

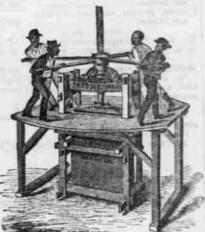

Parties in need of cotion presses would do well to call, if possible, and examine unions.

Horse Power Press! PRICES SAME AS HAND POWER PRESS.

This Press, of two-horse power, may be of either cast or wrought-iron screws; wrought-iron screws being cut with three-inch pitch for Horse Power. It may be put up either with or without iron trames—an iron frame being preferable, as it cannot break, and will never need repairs, as is the case with wood. In putting them up complete at my establishment, they do not differ from the Hand Power only in pitch of thread of screw, and different kind of levers for working. One horse can pack five to eight hundred pounds on this Press.

J. S. SCHOFIELD, Proprietor. That planters may get their Presses in time, will take in payment warehouse acceptance, due October 1, 1870, at cost prices, as above.

Schofield's Patent Cotton Press received the First Premium at the Georgia State Fair fer 1869.

It was proved superior to anything for plantation cotton packing on the ground. It is put up more substantially, is more simple and efficient than any cotton press in use. There is nothing complicated or to get out of order about it, and after being used twenty years, will be as good as new. Lever presses will not do, they will get out of order, and in a few months become a success article and are dasplaced by a screw press.

This cotton press is fast displacing the old wood screw and other presses, and of over 500 presses soid last season. I have not heard a complaint from one; but on the contrary, amidally in receipt of letters from the first planters of all the Cotton States certifying to their efficacy, and expressing their opinion that it is superior to all others.
